

OCTOBER

WHOLE NO. 1242

reported to be so at 11½ of clock.

Fordmund Guerreger, of the same company, spine broken; and also reported to be dead.

Edward Hoge, dangerously hurt, the lower part of his abdomen, and one of the sufferers we aided in taking from the ruins. He died at his residence on Elysian Fields street, about 10 o'clock.

There was a noble young fellow, and understanding in company with some gentlemen, whom we fear have suffered (I fancy, just by the wall when it fell). His name was employed in an auction establishment.

Affaired Delarande a young fellow, a noble nature, aged 19; brought out from the ruins a stiff corpse. His father, who was a well-to-do man, and a member of the police station, and made arrangements for the removal of the body home, presented a sad and striking picture of grief.

A well-known man, a laborer, brought out of the ruins dead, with his neck broken; a fine looking young fellow.

Archely Bolye, an exempt member of Fire company No. 12, taken from the ruins with his body badly hurt and suffering from internal wounds; in the Clearing Hospital not expected to live.

At. Picton, son of the late Dr. Picton, and a number of Pelican No. 1, taken from the ruins badly bruised and his leg left broken.

Wm. Fitzgerald, a gallant little fellow, whose cries were heard above the ruins for nearly half an hour before he was extracted, was taken out sadly prostrated and badly hurt internally.

He is the same gallant little fellow who was in tripping up the burglar Tom George.

John Kennedy, of whom we could find no definite information, taken out badly cut in the face and breast, and internally hurt.

Mr Mahor, a watchman, badly hurt internally, but not dangerously.

Mr Wingate, of Policeau Lloso Company, No. 4, taken from the ruins badly hurt, but not dangerously.

Mr. Sheehan, second assistant foreman of fire-engine No. 18, taken out of the ruins unhurt. This noble and gallant fellow, after being under the ruins nearly an hour, and being threatened with death by the enemy, was so much marked, "I'm all right, boys, now let me help the other poor fellows out, and at it he went. That man is a nobleman, without crown or ermine, yet with a heart that neither could cover nor be prosper.

Mr. and Mrs. other bodies beside the above, making thirteen in all taken out, but we could not learn the names.

THE MISSING.

It would be impossible to say how many persons are missing and buried beneath the mass of ruins and it would be unkind to the feelings of many a the reported lost ones' friends now living in our city or on pleasure tours, give the least word that would impede death as at their doors. However, we can not refrain from mentioning that Alexander Strawbridge, of the firm of Strawbridge & co., Commercial Alley, was not found up to our going press.

W. Clayton, of American Book and Ladder Company, No. 2, was also missing.

F. G. Bartelien, of same company, is also missing.

Mrs. Hernandez, of the cigar store opposite the St. Charles Hotel, is also missing.

We are both to mention the names of the others we have until we can speak with positiveness, one way or the other.

SLIGHTLY HEART.

The number of persons slightly hearted would fill our columns. Of those who ment Mr. Geiger, foreman of Lafayette Engine Company No. 2. The character of his condition is not determined so far.

Mr. Clark, a medical student. His wounds may be of a serious character, but we hope not.

Several persons, names unknown, have been hurt.

THE POLICE.

Of the police and Chief McClellan, we have to speak in the highest terms. The special officers and the department proved their services in a public calamity handsomely and nobly.

Lieutenant Jacques, in his noble endeavors, was felled by a portion of the falling wall, and escaped miraculously. He was not connected with the mention Fire Warden J. Adams. He behaved like a hero, and by his presence of mind saved the lives of many persons, though he got badly hurt himself.

The loss by this fire in a peculiar seige, and this is the least consideration in our mind, at this writing will be about $150,000, of which one-third is insured.

Messrs. F. J. Hart & Co. lose some $200,000 in goods stored in one of the buildings, that of 101 Tehou-pinulus street.

P. 8.—We have learned that the dead body of T. G. Bartleson has been found, and A. Cornu is dead.

A member of fire company No. 18, being taken out of the ruins as we go to press.

We will give fuller particulars tomorrow.

a case of life and death. Within this Government, that Constitution must prevail, or the minority will be placed as a "lamb that is led to the slaughter." But let that Constitution be observed and the rights of all sections under that Constitution preserved, and the South is content to abide its fate under the working of that instrument. "The North may well cry out Union! Union! at all hazards, and to the very extremity." And the North, even now, is not so much "waking up," as it is itself of training its arms, and preparing for the purpose of forcing a Union, where majority upon the South. "I understand there are "Wide Awakes," they call themselves—that is, they think themselves very "wide awake," but they will find some men in the Southern States, gentlemen, sufficiently "wide awake" to meet them. "That's so." Applause. "A brave people and a true people; gentlemen will fear no "Wide Awakes."

No man is more wide awake than I who loves his own fire side, his own wife, his own child, and aggressor on

[illegible]

Constitutional Government, no higher law Government, shall be established. Now, gentlemen, that the Constitution is the highest law of the Nation; that it is the basis of our political organization; and if driven from all other positions of the country, and there is no other spot, where the ark of the covenant, if our safety can rest and be protected, it will be on Southern soil. I have said that the Constitution is the highest law. [Loud applause.]

We do not desire at the South, division; I know of but few advocates at the South of this measure. I can point to hundreds of distinguished Northerners who are far in advance of any man here at the South upon the question of disunion. I know of no man here who would want a higher law, who would want a different Constitution, who would want another Bible—aye, and who, in religion, even call for another Jesus Christ. [Laughter and applause.]

I know of no disclaimer, per se, at the South. The humble individual who addresses you to-night has probably been more denounced as a disunionist than almost any other man in the Union. I am not, however, a disunionist. I consist in this, I swear by the Constitution, I intend that the provisions of that Constitution, which I look upon as the shield of the South in this Union, shall be carried out and the Constitution that Constitution is taken away from the South, and the South is left to remain in the Union, I consider that we would then have no rights, for we would then be placed at the foot of a dominant national abolition majority. [Applause.]
 A Voice.—We'll stand by you.
 Mr. Yancey.—I say, then, that the shield stands by the Constitution, as a shield stands by the shield. When the shield shall be taken from the

by a dominant sectional majority, who seeks to reduce this Government to the will of a mere majority, for its own sectional purposes—who intend to make the Union a mere tool and draw-rod for their sectional interests and desires? For what—do we intend to do that is consistent with us; and gentlemen, imitating the mighty example of George Washington, if there is no other place where we can erect and keep this Constitution, we will take the banner of liberty to the plains, to the mountains of Augusta, and there we will entrench ourselves as a body of freemen. [Applause.]

But, as I have said to you, we hope that day is far distant from us, and that none of us may live to see its dawn. I so help me God, will consider that to be the hour when we shall be called to account. We shall be so rent by factions that the charter of our liberties shall be trodden under foot, and the compact of our fathers ers disregarded by their degenerate sons. It would be indeed and evil hour, but we are compelled to look it in the face. A large party, numbering in itself, it is said, a plurality, if not a majority, of the people of this country, I asked together with a discipline such as no other party has, having hopes which no other party has, led by men of eminent ability, with Abraham Lincoln its candidate, with Seward its chief statesman and chief advocate; who, from Maine to the furthest frontier of civilization, proclaims a war, an "irrepressible war," upon the institutions of one half of this Union; who proclaims gentlemen, that the manner in which he interprets the Constitution is the only one that freedom requires; that the only way to freedom is by the thing in human shape on the face of the earth; who proclaims, gentlemen, therefore, that this Constitution, which is based upon the recognition of negroes as an inferior race, that is based upon the recognition of property in slaves, that is based upon this institution as a "rite institution, based upon its recognition as property, and slave

MARKETS.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 8.—Sales of Cotton to-day 1,325 bales. The market opened firm, and closed with an advancing tendency.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 6.—Sales of Cotton to-day 2,000 bales; at prices ranging from 8 to 11 1/4 cents. The market was generally unchanged.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP NORTH BRITON
Cotton Market Firm.

The steamship North Briton has arrived from Liverpool.

The sales of cotton for the week amounted to 8,000 bales, of which approximately 10,000 of exporters. Sales were Market active and firm. The sales on Friday amounted to 12,000 bales, with a firm market.

OHIO ELECTION.
Cleveland, Ohio, October 10.

The published returns confirm the triumph of the Black Republicans in the State by a large majority. The Republican Congressmen, however, lose their seats.

INDIANA ELECTION.
Indianapolis, Oct. 10.

The sixty counties of Indiana returned a Black Republican majority in Indiana of fifteen thousand. The L. C. Congressmen, will stand exchirement. The Republicans, sixty free Democrats. Congressional delegation stands, Republican, four Democrats.

CURTIS'S MAJORITY IN PENNSYLVANIA.
Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—The Ballot of this morning claims a majority of 10,000 for Curtin the Black Republican candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania.

FROM WASHINGTON.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—War Secretary has declared that Lincoln will elect a to the Presidential chair, immediately issue an address to the people, and that the States, setting forth his views of public policy, now existentially in relation to the insurrection of the South. In this way Lincoln will be quiet to quiet the fears of the South, and prevent the secession of a single State.

The Douglas men here are terribly discouraged at the result of the election in Pennsylvania. They say that Lincoln has now deserted them, and it is generally conceded that Lincoln will be ated by the people in November. Secretary Green, of Missouri, and Wicks of Texas, have just arrived here; however, are confident that their respective States will cast their electoral vote for Breckinridge.

The greatest excitement prevails here, owing to the Black Republican triumph in Pennsylvania. The Incoln men of this city are to have a grand demonstration in honor of the victor in Pennsylvania, which is immense in number. Should the result not be equally successful, the most serious difficulties are anticipated.

Threats, North and South.

The threats from the South, are different from the threats from the North.
The threats from the South, in the main, are of a general character, and are not directed against any particular State or States. The threats from the North, are of a more specific character, and are directed against the States of Mississippi, Louisiana, and Florida.

tion with the people of the North. It proposes to take nothing from the people of the North which is theirs. No right—not a liberty—not a single advantage, physical, moral or political, does it propose to take from the people of the North. It is simply, a threat of separation. On the other hand, the threat from the North are of coercion and slaughter—with a total annihilation of all self-government or liberty in the South. Considered apart from all prejudices, it would appear most innocent and reasonable that a people, if they think fit, should withdraw from association with another people, and should govern themselves in their own destinies. If the people from whose association they desire to withdraw are neither plundered nor oppressed by them in any way, why should they be so long in making up their minds to discontinue their association? No people have a right to coerce a continued association with another people, simply on the ground that the association contributes to their interest or advancement. Every principle of honesty and justice dictates that, if a people do contribute, by their association with another people, to the benefit, they cannot be blamed for with-
